

THE BEST SHOP VALUES OF THE WEEK

A handsome dressing table at Erskine Danforth's is a dignified and beautiful piece of furniture, $28.

FROM CRADLE TO CLASSROOM

JAMES A. HEARN.

IF SHE goes to school she needs bloomers either for gymnasium work or merely to wear under her dress. In sizes 12 to 18, full pleated, roomy blue serge bloomers are $2.98 in price. Little pleated or circular skirts to be worn over them with a middie on drill day also are $2.98.

BONWIT, TELLER & CO.

VELOUR hats which are almost as soft as Austrian velours, beautiful quality and in Bordeaux and other colors are $3.75.

B. ALTMAN & CO.

PARENTS may approve of the black and white mixture wool of this coat, or of the cut or the warmth. But it is the lining which will attract the child—a real fireman's red flannel lining. Price, $11.50. A little table on which the letters and numbers pictured in stories coax the child to learning and a chair with a bunny on the back make a set which costs $5.25.

BEST & CO.

A LITTLE round ball of a racoon muff will make of your baby a princess. It costs $7.75. A muff and neckpiece set is $19.50. And for party occasions or for church there is the daintiest set of pure white and black ermine, costing $40. For the boy there are wash suits, seasonable even in the winter, which have been reduced to $1.15.

LORD & TAYLOR.

THERE will be a sale, commencing Monday, of mixed chevrot suits in grays and browns for boys, sizes 7 to 18. The material is good and the price is $5, and you may have one pair of short trousers or two, depending upon your preference for quality or quantity. Quality and quantity enter also into your choice of a special order of blanket robes, costing $1.95. The smaller the size the better the material.

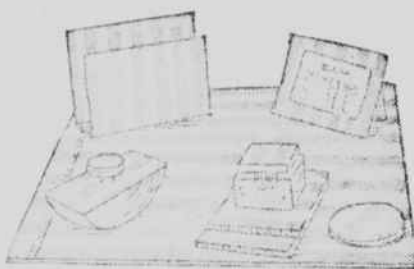

JOHN WANAMAKER.

A PETER THOMSON sailor suit or its equivalent is a sign of caste among schoolgirls. One of heavy ramie linen, which has all the earmarks of elegance, costs $12.50. An adorable dress for her high school prom, is of satin striped white chiffon, with an accordion pleated chignon underskirt and the simplest of surplice bodices. The cost is $17.50. Another at the same price is of pink tulle and has two panniers upheld by flower wreaths.

A. A. VANTINE & CO.

SOME want this stencil set for the child. But the wise mother will use it herself to get those charming effects on painted furniture or pottery or tin things. The postcard size, with many different patterns in the set, costs 35 cents.

A Dainty Desk Set

A dashing desk set is this one of mica and black and white striped silk, at Stern's for $10.75.

WANAMAKER'S.

A DESK set consisting of a blotter, pad, a penholder and a small blotter are cretonne covered. The price is but 25 cents.

Writing cases of heavy, dully colored cretonne have various partitions for paper, etc., and the with a bit of silk cord. Price, 85 cents.

STERN BROTHERS.

THAT black and white stripe which you have admired is now transferred to a desk set of silk, covered with mica for glossy, durable finish. Price, $10.75.

Bands of skunk fur for boots are $3.50 at I. Miller's.

A Veil, a Thrill, A Pair of Gloves

STERN BROTHERS.

THE plateau veil, a fashionable adjunct when made of Chantilly lace or Shetland with a straight or scalloped edge, costs $3.35.

Net fichus are temptingly cheap at 39 cents, and a chiffon collar and vestee with deep pleated side frills is exceptionally pretty and inexpensive at 95 cents.

BONWIT, TELLER.

THE season for silk gloves has not yet passed, particularly when the silks are of the strap wrist variety. Because there is a limited number left in broken sizes and styles they have been reduced from $1 to 65 cents.

LORD & TAYLOR.

FEATHER boas, the season end necessity, may be had in all colors for $2.25. An all-net guimpe and collar, hand embroidered, costs $1.25.

R. H. MACY & CO.

ON MONDAY Macy will have on sale, to last as long as the stock lasts, some Princess and Lierre laces just arrived from Belgium. Special attention is asked of prospective brides. The laces will range in price from 69 cents for narrow edgings to $3.69 for the 47-inch width.

On Monday only—for surely the supply will not last longer—black silk Brussels net, ordinarily sold by Macy for $1.50 a yard, will be sold for $1.29. The net is two yards wide.

LET YOUR LIGHT SO SHINE

STERN BROTHERS.

NOTHING but the walls of a cubic triangle are left, a candle is put in the centre, and one has the quaintest of night lamps. For further beauty a hole is knocked in one of the hand-wrought copper sides and a bit of hand-painted glass is inserted. The price is $5.75.

Those square black and white candles which are so necessary to this season's decorative scheme are 15 cents each or two for a quarter.

B. ALTMAN & CO.

GREEN bronze reading lamps, which are conservative and consequently in perpetual good taste, have been reduced from $36 to $15. They are very lovely in design, and the shade is of bronze and green stained glass.

A. A. VANTINE & CO.

THE Orient has fashioned a curious shade which, because of its hanging possibility, might be used quite as well for a lantern. It is equally useful for summer homes, for it is made of bamboo, but the bamboo is copper colored. Its cost is $1.50.

LORD & TAYLOR.

A LADDIN'S lamp has been converted into a green pottery candle holder with a thick yellow candle. But this invites the attention that its model failed of in its youth. You may own it and rub it for $1.75. Winds may blow, but not on lighted candles. And therefore a tin screen rises from the tin base of a $3 candle holder. At the top of this pretty hand-painted bit a lady and gentleman bow in graceful service.

JOSEPH P. M'HUGH & SON.

A LARGE ivory and black lamp with a shade printed with silhouette figures has been reduced from $36 to $18. An attractive bargain.

In Wood and Glass

ERSKINE DANFORTH CORPORATION.

THE charm of peasant furniture has been captured and crystallized in the little rush seat chairs which Erskine Danforth have for sale. The wood is hand painted, and the seat to match in any coloring which is desired. The price is $6.50. Much comment will be excited by a triple mirror dressing table painted in white with black markings. Price, $35.

JAMES M'CREERY & CO.

THERE will be on sale for one week only, commencing on Monday, various articles of furniture, such as a carved oak bench for $42, which is regularly $56; a solid mahogany four-post bed, shaped from four-inch stock, full or twin size, for $39.50, regularly $60, and a capacious Martha Washington work table for $10.75.

The dress that will make the stout lady less so is on straight lines and of navy or black French serge. $16.50 at Lane Bryant's.

The Better to Walk With

BONWIT, TELLER.

PLAIN black patent leather opera slippers, untrimmed and with a Louis heel, are not usually as inexpensive as they are here—$5.

Satin mules, as luxurious as delicately applied beads and roses can make them, may be had in pink, blue and black for $5.

SHOECRAFT.

A MOST aristocratic affair is the very high shoe of black French kid. Its vamp is long and narrow and the back part of the shoe is slightly narrower, proportionately, than is the front, for it is declared such is the requirement of the aristocratic foot. The cost of the shoe is $8.50. A black, shiny leather shoe with cloth top costs $5 and has the same characteristic.

ALEXANDER.

THIRTEEN inches high is the newest walking shoe. It is of black kid, is laced and has a white tassel atop. The high shoe is more or less essential to the very short skirt of the season. The price is $15.

Entirely new is the spat which Alexander is showing. It is of black and white accordion pleated silk, so that it fits snugly about the ankles without forming an ungainly bulk. Price, $2.50.

I. MILLER.

15 West 42d Street.

THE predicted has been long in coming to pass. But it is here—the fur trimmed boot. At Miller's one may purchase the fur bands which clasp about the shooetop. Skunk bands are $3.50 the pair, and the price of any other fur which may be desired will be proportionate with the fur's value.

For My Lady

WANAMAKER'S.

HAVE just received a hamper of the most delightful pottery baskets, with twisted handles and wreaths of Florentine work flowers. Their coloring is delicate and is equally appropriate for a few flowers, a bit of green or bonbons. They cost 85 cents. A Florentine table wreath, merely of pottery flowers, makes part of a centre-table decoration. Usually one combines with it a Florentine fruit basket. The wreath costs $6.50.

STERN BROTHERS.

STOCKINGS may be kept in their place most easily if one but use the pretty white enamelled wood, cretonne covered holder, which costs but $1.

BONWIT TELLER.

IF YOU would conceal a vice flaunt it before the world, said a wise man. And another wise man applied the principle to a powder book, covered it with satin and with gold lace and tied ribbons to the end of it so that the debutante might hang it from her wrist and no one suspect that it was not a dance order. One dollar for the little thing.

A. A. VANTINE.

A LACQUER cabinet has in it two small bottles of Oriental perfume. Fill the bottles with ink and the cabinet is an inkwell, or remove the bottles and one has a jewel case. This magic casket costs $1.

LORD & TAYLOR.

ROYCROFT, the epitome of the best in American applied arts, is now available to the New Yorker. Lord & Taylor have procured the sole agency for this very artistic and entirely hand-wrought work. There are charming tooled leather card cases, costing $1, and soft glove cases with nasturtium design, showing faint colorings, costing $1.25; and handwrought, tooled, colored and applied treasure chests that would have pleased the most finicky pirate, $3.50.

Seasonable Suits

LANE BRYANT.

SPECIAL provisions have been made for the stout woman and a suit devised which will decrease her apparent width. It is of diagonal chevrot, and comes in black, navy, blackberry or African brown. A special introductory price is $29.85.

JAMES A. HEARN.

EIGHTEEN dollars and ninety-eight cents is the price of a very smart poplin suit, belted and braided and with a dyed black racoon collar.

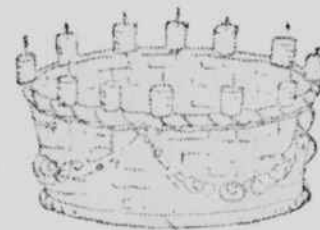

LEONARD.

A SIMPLE serge frock with a touch of chenille embroidery may be made to order for $24.50. The skirt may be scalloped, and the sleeves, and lined with a contrasting silk. Fourteen dollars and fifty cents is the cost of a charming little crêpe de chine frock with quaintly laced belt that is also made to order.

WANAMAKER'S.

THE collar of a $30 broadcloth suit is fascinating. It is high and velvet and fur edged and chin concealing. On the other hand, it may be worn low. The beaver runs down the front of the Russian blouse coat.

Monday's Opportunities

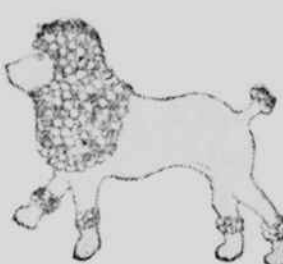

A sewing basket in white or gold wicker, is one of the week's bargains at McCreery's for 95 cents.

ON MONDAY ONLY STERN BROTHERS will offer Beauvais velour portieres for $12.75. Soft and lovely they are, reversible, combining all the leading tones and with the open French sides that preclude bulkiness. Under normal conditions these portieres would have a value of $22.50.

Blouses for $5 on Monday, but withdrawn from sale on Tuesday, do not need elusiveness to enhance their value. There is a hand-embroidered crêpe de chine and a tailor-made Georgette crêpe, an authentic copy of a French model.

A bit of Oriental jewelry on a cord. These figures run from $2.98 up, at Bonwit Teller's.

A dog at your throat is the latest brooch idea, and here he is, tail and all, for $1.95 at Bonwit Teller's.

Millinery in New Modes

JAMES A. HEARN.

THE schoolgirl may find among the ready-to-wear hats a charming little felt, its brim rolled down in youthful fashion, a satin ribbon about the crown and a small pearl buckle, for only $1.25. There are many other pretty shapes in the lot, such as, for example, a plush tam o' shanter, which costs $1.49.

BONWIT, TELLER.

THE prettiest sport hats of the year are being shown now at the climax of the season. Soft brimmed velvet hats, whose lines show the impression of the new modes, cost $4.95.

STERN BROTHERS.

"COPY OF A LEWIS MODEL"—such is the ingenious label sewn as a mark of merit in a stunning high-crowned, slightly draped black velvet hat, with a luscious rose plume dipping over the side. The hat is sufficient inducement in itself, but the label may appeal to many. Maria Guy is responsible for a velvet-faced silk beaver, whose brim is cut off in unexpected places—typically a Maria Guy hat. Many such will be presented to the public on Monday. Including labels, the price is $15.

The Day of the Dog

BONWIT, TELLER.

AN ABSURD little French poodle of black French metal with a bristling mane and tail of jet and bright ruby eyes is the most recent of fashion's decrees. It is to be worn as a brooch, gathering the vestee's or collar's front, and will excite much admiration. Its price is $1.95.

Shirts and Scarfs

FRANKLIN SIMON & CO.

STANDARD $5 tub silk shirts of excellent quality have been reduced to $3.50 because of a broken line of patterns. But there is a sufficient number of good ones from which to select. Soft cotton crêpes in stripes and with Jacquard figures were $3, and now are to be had for $1.85. There is room on his rack for one more scarf; it costs but 50 cents, is beautifully made, with open ends, and is of heavy silk, dotted or diagonally striped.

Women's Blouses At the Boys' Counter

BEST & CO.

STRANGE anomaly—a blouse that is made for the boy fulfils its destiny as a blouse for the woman. The tub silk sport shirt, or tailored shirt for the suit, which so many women have sought vainly, is to be found at the boys' counter at Best's. It has one pocket, the regulation cuff sleeves, and low pointed collar, and is all white. The price is $2.85. For rougher wear there is the very attractive shirt, made in the same fashion, of madras. Its cost is $1.35.

FREDERICK LOESER.

PLAID taffets is at the present moment the material for the tailor blouse. It is difficult to find one which is as inexpensive as the one shown here for $3.98.

The Black Bag

BONWIT TELLER.

FABRICS still hold the field in handbags, leather remaining in the background. A pretty little moire bag, with a light blue stone top and a Dresden silk lining, with a bevelled edge mirror, costs but $1.75.

FRANKLIN SIMON COMPANY.

SOFT checked velvet, the check formed by thinning of the nap, is used in the making of the newest bag. An old ivory and Dutch blue silk lining takes care of the inside. Price, $5. If one wishes something a little more durable than velvet or silk, there is the black bag of finest pin seal, whose top is of the latest fashion, a broad low clasp of white bone. $1.

Ruffles and Silk

R. H. MACY & CO.

THREE lace-edged ruffles are found on the lingerie skirt whose top is of heavy cambric. Price, 94 cents. Many there are whose tastes run to French nightgowns of the hand-embroidered variety. They are to be had at the exceptional price of $1.29.

Petticoats must be shadow-proof when worn with the thin net gowns of the season. For $1.49 one may procure an all hand-sewn and hand-embroidered one.

FRANKLIN SIMON COMPANY.

PARFAIT silk vests are on sale for $1.25, and glove silk knickers, in plain white or flesh, in flesh and white stripes, in spider-webbing and of flowered silk, that were $3.25, are now $1.95.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

SILKS which sold regularly up to $6 in price are to be had for $3.50.

For the last few baths of the season there are left some plain pure rubber bathing caps which cost but 10 cents.

For your little girl this school dress of serge and tulle has all the requirements of good value. At Altman's, $12.75.

In an attractive plaid is this utility tulle blouse at Loeser's (Brooklyn) at $3.98.
